A Brighton man allegedly struck a Waltham man in the face with a tequila bottle at an Allston T stop after the two 28-year-olds exchanged blows on a Green Line trolley late Friday, officials said.

The fight began on the B-line train and continued when the men got off at the Warren Street stop on Commonwealth Avenue, according to a police report.

At the stop, Carlos Espinoza allegedly used a 1.75-liter tequila bottle as a weapon, giving the other man – whose name was not released – a gash on his lip which was treated with three to four stitches at a nearby hospital, said police.

After receiving five stitches of his own for a cut on his left eyebrow, Espinoza was released from the hospital and arrested for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon – a bottle, according to responding MBTA and city police.

The bottle was seized as evidence, officials said.
