Three "sudden deaths" at three addresses along a mile-and-a-half stretch of Commonwealth Avenue in Brighton and Allston over the past three days are unrelated cases, Boston Police said Monday.

A 26-year-old male found at 1820 Commonwealth Ave. in Brighton on Saturday afternoon is believed to have taken his own life.

A person, whom police could not immediately identify by age or gender, found Sunday afternoon at 1960 Commonwealth Ave. in Brighton is believed to have suffered a heart attack.

And the body of a woman, whose age police did not immediately know, was found late Monday afternoon at 1298 Commonwealth Ave. in Allston. An autopsy will be performed later to determine a possible cause of that death.

None of the cases had been ruled homicides as of Monday evening, said police spokesman David Estrada. He said the cases are "completely unrelated."

The deaths along the busy Route 30 roadway were first reported by local news blog UniversalHub.
