The injuries to a woman who was wounded in a stabbing in Roxbury on Sunday night are now considered to be non-life threatening, a Boston Police spokeswoman said Monday.

The woman had been stabbed multiple times at a home on Marcella Street in Roxbury and was hospitalized with what police said on Sunday were life-threatening injuries.

A 911 call was made at about 7:50 p.m. reporting that a man and woman were fighting at the two-story house, police said. The caller said the man was attacking the woman.

On Sunday night, investigators had taped off the two-story home, and blood was visible on the porch.
