

The project was paid for with a $30,000 grant from the city's Edward Ingersoll Browne

Fund and led through a partnership by the Boston Police Department's District D-14 Community Service Office, the Mayor's Office, City Councilor Mark Ciommo, The Allston-Brighton Historical Society, The Allston-Brighton CDC and Congregation Kadimah-Toras Moshe, he said.

"The effort put forward by the Brighton Community reflects the spirit and commitment to those who have served and sacrificed for our country," said O'Hara.

Kaplan, 19, died Oct. 10, 1944. He had lived at 124 Washington St. in Brighton before volunteering to enlist in the Army's in E Company, 104th Infantry Regiment, 26th Infantry, or "Yankee" Division.

According to the National Gold Star Family Registry, Kaplan was active in the Boy Scouts as a young man

"One of the most memorable stories of Stanley as a Boy Scout leader occurred when he took his scouts on a camping trip," the registry says. "The children were playing with matches and one of the scouts lit another child on fire. When Stanley tried to put the fire out by rolling the child in the dirt, he caught fire himself. He burned his uniform in the process and had to wear the burnt uniform for the remainder of the trip. He was content knowing he possibly saved the child's life."

At a family dinner in Miami before heading off to serve, someone asked Kaplan why he volunteered to enlist instead of waiting to possibly be drafted. He responded: "Because I am a Jew," the registry said.

"During the fighting, Stanley saw one of his friends get hit by enemy fire and ran to his aid," the registry says. "In the process of trying to help his friend, Stanley was shot and killed."

In Brighton, an epitaph inscribed on his memorial reads: "A good son, A good Boy Scout, A good soldier."

O'Hara said officials have tried to contact family of Kaplan to attend Friday's rededication ceremony, but so far have had no luck. He said members of the community are welcomed to attend.

E-mail Matt Rocheleau at mjrochele@gmail.com.

For the latest updates about your community, follow some of our local neighborhood, city and town Twitter accounts, here.

Please log In to comment.

A look inside the new museum

NIGHTLIFE

A turbulent year for Allstor businesses

TRENDS

They kick it in Allston like no place else

	P Today's Globe News Business Sports Lifestyle A&E Things to Do Travel Cars Jobs Real Estate Local Search
	OSTON.COM Help Advertise Work here Privacy Policy Your Ad Choices Terms of Service Newsletters Mobile RSS feeds Sitemap
ONTACT THE BOSTON	GLOBE Subscribe Manage your subscription Advertise Boston Globe Insiders The Boston Globe Gallery © 2014 Boston Globe Media Partners,