Huffington Post co-founder, chair, president and editor-in-chief Arianna Huffington will give a talk at Tufts University this spring about whether journalism is improving as it expands and shifts to digital platforms.

The university announced Huffington will be the featured speaker at the ninth annual Edward R. Murrow Forum on Issues in Journalism on Wednesday, April 16 at 12 p.m. in the Cohen Auditorium at the school's Medford-Somerville campus.

The forum, entitled "From TV to Tablet: Is the Digital Frontier Making Journalism

Better?," will begin with an interview of Huffington by Tufts alum and trustee board vice chair Jonathan M. Tisch, who hosts the television program "Beyond the Boardroom with Jonathan Tisch" in addition to his leadership roles at Loews Corporation and Loews Hotels, university officials said.

The event, free and open to the public, will end with a chance for audience members to ask Huffington about her career.

The Greek-American business executive, author and syndicated columnist is regarded as one of the world's most influential people.

Past featured speakers at the annual forum have included Brian Williams, Katie Couric, Christiane Amanpour, Ted Koppel, Tom Brokaw, Dan Rather and Chris Matthews.

The forum is sponsored by Tufts' Communications and Media Studies Program, the Edward R. Murrow Center of Public Diplomacy at The Fletcher School, and the Tisch College of Citizenship and Public Service, campus officials said.

They should ask her why she no longer allow "anonymous" comments on her Website... Why freedom of speech is good for her... but not her readers.

And they should also ask her for a "current" photo.

Arianna Huffington is to journalism what Justin Bieber is to music.

So aggregated content by others is now considered Journalism? Or the thoughts and whims of pseudo celebrities? The Huffington Post is the most ad heavy, annoying website I have ever seen. You open a page and you get three videos on 3 different subjects automatically streaming at the same time. She sold out to AOL (Yeah, really) and got paid hundreds of millions for it. Amazing isn't it?

The fact she is speaking at all is a pretty sad commentary about the state of journalism.
