Talk about your fickle weather.

Late Saturday morning at Logan Airport, the high temperature reached the low 20s, according to data from the National Weather Service.

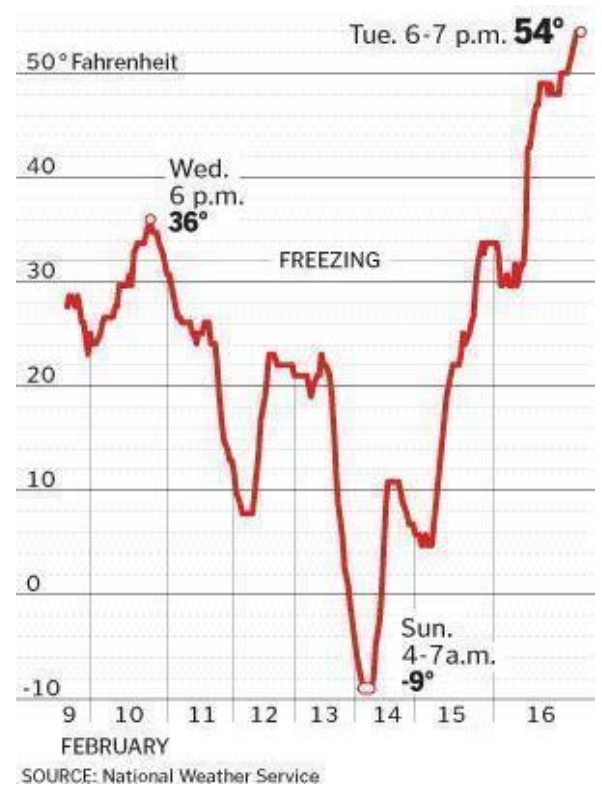

About 17 hours later, just before 4 a.m. Sunday, the mercury bottomed out at minus 9 degrees.

Temperatures warmed up slightly Sunday, and even more Monday. And by 6 p.m. Tuesday, it was a balmy 54 degrees.

That was a 63-degree swing from Sunday morning.
