Results of recent water testing at Mass. schools

The following list, sorted alphabetically by municipality, shows results for recent testing of water at schools around the state. The column on the far right indicates if a school passed water tests or if it failed, with at least one water source testing above regulatory standards for lead, copper, or both. Some schools may not be listed here if they either are conducting tests independent of the statewide program or if they are not testing.

Officials say schools have taken steps to address cases of high lead and copper levels and have notified parents of the results.
